

Online Worship Broadcast—Update

Our technology committee believes they have resolved the problem that was interfering with our livestream worship broadcast the last few weeks. Many thanks for your patience and grace!

We hope this Sunday to offer a live video feed of our sanctuary worship service on YouTube and Facebook at 10am so that those at home may share worship with us. You will find the live video of our worship on the church's Facebook and YouTube pages, and the recording is permanently save there as well for later viewing. To quickly find those pages, look for the labeled buttons at the bottom of every church email.

Meetings Next Week

There is a choir meeting in the sanctuary on Wednesday September 2 at 6:45pm to explore safe ways of providing music during Covid-19. Finance, House, and Deacons also have meetings next week, followed by session's meeting the week after. Please check the calendar on the reverse for details and scheduling.

Sermon Scripture Requests Welcome

While we are in-between sermon series, Pastor Alex is open to requests for any scriptures you wish to see explored from the pulpit. While not every suggestion may be covered in this timeframe, Alex loves to hear what congregants are wrestling with or enjoying from the Bible.

Changes to Prayer Requests & Concerns

The prayer concerns list in our Pews News was not updated for some time and so has been cleared out. But if someone's prayer concern should still be on this list or if you have someone you would like our church to pray for, please let the office staff know. Additionally, we sadly must suspend the prayer request time in our Sunday services for two reasons. Because worship is shared online, we want to protect the privacy of those we pray for so their needs are not displayed across the world. Further, shouting out prayer requests out indoors as we used to do greatly raises the odds of spreading covid-19. Instead, if you have a joy or concern you wish prayer for, please contact the church so we can put the request into our announcements and Pews News.
